PRICE TWOPENCE

DISCE AUT DISCEDE

Loyalty to the College and to the ideal of a future Wessex University is a very real thing to those of us who have spent a year or more in Southampton. The Principal and the Staff are constantly testifying to their love of the College, not only by the patient work preliminary to the erection of our new buildings with their consequent beauty and utility but, individually, they have shewn and will show, no doubt, each year, to the individual student how to make the very most of his career and how, in his turn, he can find and express an ever deepening affection for his College.

Those who have joined us this year for the first time will find, in this college, a student organisation, wide enough in scope for the future University, which represents the contribution of past and present students. Each year, the Students' Union grows ever stronger as we reap the benefit of the preceding year's work. We have, in the past few years derived great benefit from the gradual growth of a sympathetic friendship between the staff and ourselves, the student body as a whole, and we are learning to value their advice to an increasing extent. These two factors, loyalty to the College from each student, and the friendly attitude of the Staff are very important in the life of the Union and are, each year increasingly so, as soon as the Freshers easily and willingly lend their support.

"Disce aut discede"—on the walls of Winchester College, the newcomer each year finds this terse and drastic admonition, below it, are symbols of authority and flagellation. In Southampton, at the beginning of this new session, we welcome the Freshers and offer them this advice—"Learn or depart." It is to be hoped that they will readily accept this as one principle guiding their College life, although the Principal himself, representing an authority we all recognise, guides us by methods more subtle than flagellation.

Whilst we make this suggestion in all seriousness, hoping that by brilliant work, either in Degree work or in Research, each year will help to establish our academic worthiness as a College and will see us nearer the attainment of our ideal—the University of Wessex—at the same time, we wish the scope of their "learning" to be wider than that of a book-bound world. Learn to know people—such knowledge is a part of great learning.

Our student organisation is already elaborate. The Union offers many opportunities for the individual to widen his knowledge—either by taking a part, however small, in the work of organisation or, more simply by contact with fellow students whether in the College buildings or on the athletic field. These various societies and athletic clubs number as many as in a University and, with our present numbers, their need for support is urgent and each needing not only a large membership, but also a few even more devoted followers who will undertake each year the necessary work of organisation. It is, moreover, highly desirable that no one should endanger his career by spending too much time in this work, nor should any one man become indispensable, so that we would appeal to all students this year, seniors and freshers, to take their full share of the responsibility and of the work, ready to fill any place in the Union. We should then feel that there was, in training, someone for every office, big or small, enough enthusiasts to share the work equally—one major office per man and the machinery would run the better for the smoothing of an unavoidable annual cessation and its re-fitting with new parts. The "oiling of our machinery," and the efficiency of the new parts, depends upon the number of those willing to help, of those students who can love the Library but do not entirely live for it and all that it represents.

We have made our appeal for the acquisition of a balanced career at College hoping that no one student, senior or junior, will devote himself to either part unreservedly but will judiciously serve both the Library and the Union.

These points have been admirably and concisely expressed for us, by Mr. Furley, in the following words, with the valuable additional thought that by our conduct within and without College we can benefit the reputation of our College. This is a way in which everyone can help, even those who may still begrudge the time given up to Union activities—this will cost them nothing—save thought. He said: "A high tone of conduct, a contempt for extravagance in thought or manner, recognition of the value of College friendship and of what undergraduates do by their intercourse to educate one another and the obligation to work for others as well as ourselves—these and many other things are what we look back on in later life as what we learnt at College, and the things which have helped us in life."

These things are what we, whether of the seniors, or of the newcomers to whom we are extending a warm welcome and our friendship—"Learn or depart."

Editorial.

"So much to do; so little done," the famous last words of Cecil Rhodes make a special appeal to us at the beginning of a new Session. We hope that everyone after surviving the initial shock of filling up forms in triplicate and interviewing Tutors will toil hard and not waste valuable time in the Mixed Common Room. Few of us can rest easily upon our laurels, and, if it be not asking too much, perhaps this spirit of industry may even infect Graduates.

We need scarcely state, however, that academic achievement, whilst of considerable importance, is not the only thing to be sought at a University. If that is the sole aim of anyone we recommend them to several excellent Correspondence Courses which claim to get you through examinations whatever your Intelligence Quotient may be.

While on the subject of work we are reminded of last Session's Editor. It is customary when taking over the seal of office to pay some tribute to one's predecessor. But it is no mere convention in this case that moves us to record that he possessed those admirable qualities of fortitude and perseverance in his task, usually confined to a few men who guard the more perilous frontiers of the Empire.

We shall, of course, endeavour to follow in the path he has trod, but if there are occasional lapses from the high standard set us, we ask our readers to be forbearing.

The more observant and the financially astute will have noticed a reduction in the price of this paper. This does not mean that some wealthy magnate has bought the control of Wessex News, nor is it a present from the advertisers. It merely means that if Wessex News is to be an economic proposition and the Students' Council grant is to be justified, then many more people must support it than have done so hitherto.

It was with extreme regret we learned that our President of the Union and General Secretary of the Athletic Union elected for the current Session were unable to return to College. The loss of their services will be severely felt and is one we can ill afford.

The New President

In her leading article in this issue of the Wessex News, Miss Gardener likens Union affairs to a delicate piece of machinery which requires, to ensure smooth running, not only lubricant—but also a sufficient quantity of spares. Perhaps the election of A. R. Brown to the office of President of the Union is one of the best proofs of the truth in Miss Gardener's statement and the Union is indeed lucky in being able to call upon him to fill the gap caused by G. A. Hemming's unfortunate resignation.

In social and academic activities, no less than on the river, Alec has more than pulled his weight. His experience as secretary to the Faculty Society of Economics, as B.M. of the Wessex News, and as Gen. Rep. on the S.C. has fully equipped him for his new office.

Smooth and efficient running requires something more—a lubricant; but those who know Alec will have no fear on this score. His wide and varied interests, his open-mindedness, his capacity for seeing the other person's point of view, his cheery smile and his invaluable sense of humour, have endeared him to all sections of the College and have shown him possessed of a spirit of tolerance so necessary in the head of a Union such as ours.

He has been called upon suddenly to take up his new position—and perhaps the best encouragement we can give him as he faces the difficult work ahead is to assure him of our loyal support and co-operation and to wish him—Godspeed.

OUR CYNIC SAYS

After all, getting a degree is only one further step towards becoming like a lecturer.

It is rumoured in official circles that an enterprising Insurance agent is to stand outside the Assembly Hall and Refectory, offering Life Policies to those about to enter.

We understand the premium is a high one.

Professor Adam

It is with considerable pleasure that we welcome to College Professor N. K. Adam who has been elected to the Chair of Chemistry in succession to Professor Boyd. Professor Adam was educated at Winchester College and proceeded to Trinity College, Cambridge in 1910, being elected a Fellow of his College in 1915.

At the outbreak of war he was appointed chemist to the Naval Airship Section on Professor Cave-Browne-Cave's staff. Professor Cave-Browne-Cave was then chief engineer officer to airship section.

After the war he returned to work in the chemical and biochemical departments at Cambridge where, in 1920, he commenced his study of monomolecular surface films, upon which branch of Physical Chemistry he is a recognised authority.

In 1920, he was awarded the Royal Society Sorby Research Fellowship at Sheffield University where he continued his work on surface chemistry for eight years.

In 1930, while a member of the staff of Imperial Chemical Industries, he was detailed for special research at University College, London.

Just previous to his appointment here he was a Lecturer at London.

In 1935, Professor Adam was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society.

English Association

The Opening Meeting of the Autumn Term will be held at Connaught Hall, Swaythling, by kind invitation of the Warden, on Monday, October 18th, 1937, at 5 for 5.30 p.m., when Mr. Basil Willey, M.A., Lecturer in English Literature in the University of Cambridge, and Author of The Seventeenth Century Background, will deliver a lecture on THE IDEA OF NATURE

Tea will be served to members at 5 p.m.

At the lecture guests will be cordially welcome.

Simeon Potter,
Hon. Secretary.

Scout Group Camp

A very successful Summer camp was held for a fortnight during August, at Ventnor, Isle of Wight. In spite of the ideal opportunities offered, there were no sensational cliff rescues nor did anyone break his neck.

A full report of the Camp, together with a photograph, appeared in the Hampshire Advertiser of September 18th.

The Rover Crew invite all Freshmen interested in scouting, whether with previous experience or not, to tea in Refectory on Friday next, at 5 p.m.

(Note.—The previous experience refers to Scouting, not to tea in Refec.—Ed.)

Notice to Past Students.

As Wessex News is sent to a large number of past students, we feel it would be appreciated if a column were devoted to news about them. We should, therefore, be glad if as many ex-students as possible, whether they are tiger shooting in Malaya or teaching at a Public School, could send us from time to time, news of their adventures in the University of Life.

There are, we believe, certain places—notably Southend and Brighton—where Southamptonians have collected in numbers to spread the Wessex culture amongst the youth of the land. If one representative from each such community were to send us all the news once a month, it would prove of great value.

As we have unfortunately to cater for some depraved tastes, we have set up a Secret Service organisation which will report the more scandalous news about Old Hartleians. We realise that a strict censorship will have to be imposed on some of its findings, but, as Sir John Reith says: "let us be broadminded" about the rest.

MISS E. LIGHTBODY.

We take this opportunity of welcoming Highfield's most important fresher—the new Warden.

Miss Lightbody took her M.A. at Edinburgh University, and then went on to Sociology and later, to a course in Domestic Science. In her last year at College, she was (in equivalent terms) the woman President of the Students' Union; she was Sub. Warden, first at the Domestic Science College in Edinburgh, and then at Liverpool University, whence she came to Highfield.

Highfield has already found her interest in Hall and College affairs particularly lively, and is convinced she is working in its interests.

Wessex News wishes Miss Lightbody every success in her new office, hopes her first venture into the South will be a happy one.

FRESHERS' DEBATE

ALL WELCOME!

11.15 a.m.,

ATHLETIC UNION.

A. R. WIFE ELECTED GENERAL SECRETARY

Boat Club—Interested Freshmen invited to meet Officials and Coaches To-day

Freshers' Trials Reveal Promise for Rugger Team

The commencement of the winter season of the Athletic Union sees many changes of officials of the various clubs. As many as ten captains have gone down, so there is consequently an opportunity for the new officials to experiment with the various reforms and improvements which must have suggested themselves during last season. And so, at the beginning of this new season, we take this opportunity of wishing all clubs of the A.U., large and small, flourishing or struggling, a very successful and enjoyable season.

We congratulate A. R. Wife on his election to the Secretarial Chair of the A.U., which had unfortunately fallen vacant on account of the elected secretary's going down.

It is somewhat strange to realise that such doughty figures as "Robbie," the Georges Lawrence, Moir and Morton, Roy Wife and Harry Morris, "Scotty," and Miss Westbrook, are no longer in our midst to inspire us with their keenness and enthusiasm, but fortunately we have those who will prove themselves worthy successors.

By this time of the term the Freshers will have been cajoled, intimidated, threatened or inveigled into giving their support to one or other of the various clubs, and we hope that the strenuous efforts of the senior members will produce results which will reward their missionary, though perhaps sometimes proselytizing, zeal. Nevertheless, in order to maintain and raise the standard of our sport, it is obviously essential that clubs should look with confidence to the new members of the Athletic Union for a continuation of the Athletic side of the College life; with a reduced number of students up at College this year, it is more essential than ever that every Freshman who has any interest at all in Athletics should manifest his interest in a very practical manner.

The Sports Editor would like to draw the attention of secretaries of clubs to the arrangements for handing in reports of matches, etc. These should be ready, wherever possible, by Sunday evening, or if this is impossible, they must be handed in to Buttons by 9 a.m. on Monday morning, otherwise they will be too late to be printed. Reports should be written on one side of the paper only.

BOAT CLUB

In spite of tide-gauges of varying degrees of accuracy, the Boat Club is still at the mercy of the tides. Inconvenient high water and the absence of a large number of graduates on Elementary School Practice have made practice in eights impossible before next week-end. There will, however, be practice in pairs and fours on Wednesday, and judging by the number of men who have indicated a desire to row, prospects are very good for the oncoming season.

All freshmen who are thinking of joining the Boat Club are cordially invited to meet the officials and coaches at an informal tea in Refectory, To-day, Tuesday, at 4.45 p.m.

CROSS COUNTRY CLUB.

Although we of the Cross Country Club are bound to feel the loss of our Captain, Lawrence, very keenly, yet we have reason to hope that we shall have a successful season.

We are fortunate in having with us still, Moore, Newton-Smith, Pearce, Burroughs, Russell and Dukes of the old team; several freshers have turned out and are footing the light fantastic foot in feathery fashion.

May we make it clear that the C.C.C. is not only a club for those who can run, but for those who would like to run, and any men who would like to join us, if only to keep fit, will be very welcome.

MEN'S HOCKEY CLUB.

The outlook of the Men's Hockey Club for this session is anything but rosy. All except three of last year's first eleven have departed and of the corresponding second eleven but few remain.

At the practice games several keen foreign students and one year Grads. turned out and several showed that with practice they will be quite good. The return of Robinson to College is very welcome, especially so as not one of last year's forwards remain.

At the moment it is all that the club can do to field one eleven, and much more support is required. Last session the Hockey Club had a fairly successful season, one important point in which was the increase in number of fixtures of the second eleven. This season the fixture list of second eleven matches has been still further increased. We do not wish to scratch these fixtures, they were made for the second eleven and a second eleven must be turned out. We will be very pleased to welcome anyone who wishes to play Hockey. It does not matter if you are new to the game or not—try it, and do not be put off by the fact that you have no stick—we will arrange for the stick if you turn out!

RUGGER CLUB.

The improved standard of College Rugger during the past few seasons has reaped its reward this season when we have a very good 1st XV fixture list, and a full 2nd XV card.

Most of last season's pack have returned and we have several promising freshmen to fill the vacancies. Among the outsiders, however, the loss of our Secretary, R. M. Thomas at stand-off half, has only accentuated what would in any case have been a difficult problem, though the return of R. Woolley—our Vice-Captain—to the right wing, will greatly strengthen the attack. Again, the first trials brought to light considerable new talent and we hope to turn out a stronger team than last season.

The state of our 2nd XV is, however, much less promising. Individual talent is not lacking and there should never be any difficulty in filling 1st XV vacancies—but so far there have not been enough at trials to form a complete second team.

Our 1st XV meets the E.R.A.'s, Portsmouth, at the Montefiore Ground next Saturday and our 2nd XV meets their "B" team at Portsmouth and we extend a hearty welcome to all Rugger enthusiasts to come and support us either in the field or on the touch-line.

Proposed

Shorthand Club

A knowledge of Shorthand and Book-keeping is an invaluable asset to anyone who wishes to enter almost any of the numerous branches of industry and commerce to-day. This is no less true of the graduate as it is of the man or woman who enters these walks of life straight from school, and it applies equally to the Engineering or History student as to the student of Economics and Commerce.

In view of this, it has been suggested that a Shorthand Club be formed, as a self-supporting student society. Mr. R. A. Hodgson, of the Faculty of Economics, has very kindly offered to act for the club (should one be formed) as correspondent with Pitman's, with whom he is in close contact. He has a number of text-books and general literature on shorthand, which he proposes to place in the Main Library, and which should be sufficient for the needs of the members of the club. Mr. Hodgson would also put the club in touch with a competent teacher of shorthand, whose fees would be met from the subscriptions paid by the members of the club. Obviously, the larger the membership, the smaller would the subscription need to be. This would be the only expense entailed (except, of course, for the purchase of note-books).

Members of the club would be welcome to attend the Intermediate Course in Book-keeping in the Faculty of Economics. Every effort would be made to ensure that students of all Faculties and Departments would be able to attend this course.

Will all students—who are of either sex and of any Faculty—who are at all interested in this scheme, please get into touch as quickly as possible with R. C. D. Kite, M.C.R.

Freshers' Social

Four members of Wessex News Staff were present at the Freshers' Social, but all of them were too occupied to write a report.

N.B. The Editor was too occupied even to be present.

The O.T.C.

We draw attention to the fact that a senior division of the O.T.C. has been formed in College. Those wishing to join should apply to Mr. Ackroyd. Full particulars appear on the Students' Union notice boards.

For Sale:

BAH !

It was customary at that time, amongst the larger mass-producing organisations at least, to discard or destroy any articles which had been damaged, soiled or marred in the process of manufacture or which was in any way unsatisfactory; but the Educational System was an important exception. The prime function of this manufactory was to take small boys as raw material and (in conjunction with Tempus and Co., Ltd.) to turn them into men capable of serving the community in some useful capacity. This was normally accomplished within the first eighteen years of the life of the material and it left its factory to take up work fit for a man. Such were the miners, ship-builders and farmers of whom the historians speak so warmly.

Invariably, however, there was a considerable percentage of failures—"whimp'ring younglings" whose sole desire was that their hair should be sleek and their ties straight; mere youths who were incapable of handling a plough or feeding a pig or, indeed, of doing any kind of work fit for a man. But contrary to expectation, no attempt was made to put an end to the existence of these undesirable; instead they were coddled, gloated over, wrapped in cotton wool and sent to the University labelled "freshers." (The University, be it known, was a kind of asylum to which all the diseased were sent lest the plague should spread.)

Some attempt was made at this institution to mould their characters and make them something more worthy of their existence. They were taught things of practical value—shoe cleaning, tea making, washing up; and their capacity for being humble was enlarged. But these poor misguided youths with their perverted sense of humour had such mean and childish minds that when, by the process of time they became Seniors, their vindictive desire was to prey likewise upon the unhappy freshmen in the community.

And when at length their case was pronounced hopeless they left the institution to take up posts in "Education, Ltd." where they prepared more material for the same process; and so the cycle went—ad nauseam.

Correspondence

To the Editor of Wessex News.

Dear Sir,
Notices on the Union Board and on the Societies' Board, draw attention to the fact that the first practice of the Choral Society will take place to-day, Tuesday, Oct. 12th. For the benefit of Freshers, perhaps I should explain that the Choral Society is open to all students with or without previous experience and irrespective of whether they think they can sing or not. There is no subscription. During this term Mr. D. C. Williams will coach the Chorus, and towards the end of the term auditions will be held for the allocation of principal parts. In the Spring Term the Chorus and Principals will go "on the floor" i.e. the stage of the Assembly Hall for the remaining practices. The Active Membership of the Choral Society does not take up as much time as might be imagined and is thoroughly enjoyable as any past member will testify.

"The Sorcerer" is a very jolly opera with tuneful and lively music. In the Summer the Chorus will combine with a first class orchestra under Mr. Williams' direction to produce a Symphony Concert. Practices for this will begin in the near future.

Yours truly,
P. S. Kenyon,
Hon. Sec.

To the Editor of Wessex News.
Sir,

The award of colours has been a matter of unhappy comment ever since I have been at the College and I shall not feel that the Session has been complete unless something is done to render their award more satisfactory.

The standard of the colours awarded is very low and I feel we should (1) award them to all members of the first team who have a given percentage of games, or (2) set up a system which will allow of a more critical discussion of awards.

Colours should not be awarded for "scrimshanking" as the function has been so picturesquely described. Recently the number of colours awarded was more than the total number in the first team. One of these was awarded to a member of the second team. So far as I know, no comment was made upon this generosity of the Athletic Union and the award was given for scrimshanking rather than merit.

I would suggest that, on the same grounds, a man who marks stages on a cross-country course for a given percentage of matches should be given colours and the same recognition be extended to a man who plucks the remainder of a second team from the air at the eleventh hour. Seriously, if the Union consider it desirable that scrimshanking should be given recognition, it should prepare a "Scrimshanking Diploma" so that even the blind may see that it has not been given for merit in sport.

The chief reasons that this continues are:—

(a) The A.U. is not informed of the people to whom it is proposed to award colours.

(b) The A.U. members are not mutually critical of colours proposed.

We find, therefore, that outstanding men are passed over while others are given colours "because it is their last year."

The remedy is to have a Colours Awards Committee constituted for criticism as well as approval. It should be smaller than the A.U. which tends to be unwieldy. It should contain members of staff who have qualified themselves by their general and practical interest in College sports and upon whom the burden of criticism would rest. This system has been adopted elsewhere and has resulted in the end of complaint and in merit being the ruling factor.

Yours, etc.,
D. C. Goymer.

To the Editor of Wessex News.

Dear Sir,
I have it on good authority that the Common Rooms Committee, which in the past has claimed notoriety by never meeting, has this Session suddenly decided to make sweeping changes in the selection of journalistic literature it provides for students.

Let it not be supposed that I disagree with this action. Indeed, I heartily approve.

But may I be allowed to express an earnest hope that before the Committee goes to sleep again, it will rouse itself to make even more drastic changes in the decorations in the Common Rooms.

Tradition is a good thing and could, up to a point, be fostered, but surely the artistic adornments in the Library are sufficient link with the past, without making the Common Rooms look like a photographer's establishment.

And lest I be accused of purely destructive criticism, may I suggest that here is a useful piece of work on which the newly formed Wessex Art Club might begin at once—and thus soon in its career might produce its magnum opus.

No longer must we gaze at unreadable newspapers or empty cupboards, but how much longer must we look at the same ancient photographs of now ancient Old Hartleians?

Yours, etc.,
Modernist.
